Recruitment drive

KINGS CROSS STEELERS are opening their doors to new talent, as the Newham outfit celebrate the 15th anniversary of their birth as the world's first ever gay rugby club.

The pioneering side are looking for new players to boost their Essex League Division Two campaign, and chairman Tim Sullivan is keen to extol the virtues of his internationally recognised outfit.

"The Steelers have become a valid choice for London's local rugby players," said Sullivan.

"We are nationally recognised as a well-run and organised rugby club and are fully supported by the Essex RFU.

"I want to give a warm welcome to all new players and supporters who want to join us to play competitive rugby, either as a beginner or as a more experienced player."

Pre-season will kick-off on July 8 at Steelers' ground in West Ham, offering training under floodlights, a well equipped clubhouse and bar, and one of the best social scenes in London.
